The coal deal is a cold deal for the people.

"Died in an attic, but worth $60,000."

Of what use to have lived?

Another slasher is at work on the east side. Lookout for him Mr. MURRAY.

Robbers in Mexico stole 10,000 cart-wheel dollars. This is carrying the free silver idea to an extreme.

A soldier's widow died of starvation while waiting for a pension, and so many unjust pensions are paid!

It is announced that "Jay Gould doesn't fear GARZA." Perhaps GARZA doesn't fear GOULD either.

Rapid City, Dak., is becoming a fashionable resort for Eastern people seeking divorce. Not an inappropriate name.

The Health Board's inquiry into the management of the North Brother Island hospitals should produce good results.

The prize-fight craze is covering the country. Let it be a warning that a mill started by two boys resulted in the death of one of them.

Here is a grocer who did not have to send his sugar. He bought two barrels from a stranger at half price. Only the top two inches was sugar.

Ex-Police Justice MURRAY admits that he will join the Mugwump movement. Isn't the firm name likely to become "Murray, Mugwumps &amp; Co.?"

Two young German Princesses stopped a runaway horse the other day, after several other people had given up the job. There may be hope yet of stopping the runaway Kaiser.

JERRY SIMPSON seems to think IGNATIOS DONNELLY a promising man for the Third Party candidacy. Of course, his campaign documents would be printed in Republican papers.

Another rum cure is reported, the nature of which, of course, the inventor keeps strictly to himself. It is to be taken on trust, and all a man can do is to hope it may cure and not craze.

The color line has been drawn very strictly in the medical profession, to judge from the complaint made by Afro-Americans who have taken to that calling. It is claimed that colored physicians are deterred from the advantages of diagnosis in important cases, and that even their own cases, when transferred to a hospital, are sometimes becomes necessary, are utterly removed from their control and supervision. As a partial remedy for this state of affairs a movement to establish a special hospital has been discussed. It seems, however, that a broader spirit of fraternalism should prevail in the profession, regardless of color.

THE OLD SITE FOR THE NEW HALL.

The southern end of Manhattan Island is not alone the first to catch the eye and form the impression of the tourist for pleasure or business coming to the city by its ocean waterway. It is also and most conspicuously first in the matter of its convenience and adaptability for the city's best business interests. And it will never be any different.

Year by year the solidity and durability of the downtown establishment of trade is added to by the construction of new buildings, the very completeness and magnificence of which give evidence of the builders' convictions as to the permanency of the conditions making the location desirable.

This is true with the city of New York standing as a distinct municipality. It will be still more evident to the man who takes a look ahead to the time when New York will be the center actually, as it is now in practical effect, of a far greater metropolis, including Kings County and Staten Island, and perhaps even a slice of New Jersey.

And the city needs to look ahead as much as do its citizens. It is greatly in need of a new and spacious and superb municipal building. It must have one that will be equal to the demands of generations to come. So the site, as well as the architectural features, must be chosen with all forethought and care. Happily, the forefathers of the town, though short-sighted in some respects, were conspicuously fortunate in this particular. They located the old City Hall right where the municipal interests will center to the end of time, so far as any human probabilities indicate, and on that site the new building should be erected. It furnishes all necessary space and all opportunity for architectural display, and meets so exactly the other requirements of the case that there is cause for wonder in every moment of hesitancy over its selection by the New City Hall Commission.

WHO IS THIS ENEMY?

Who is Coroner Levy's enemy? That he has one is certain. He says so himself, and, besides, there is evidence to prove it. Why should he be a thing to wonder at. Coroner Levy is gentle, thoughtful and kind. Indeed, he always tries to make friends.

There are various ways of displaying malignity. Deacon RICHARD SMITH's wicked partners sought their enemy by printing things in the Deacon's paper unknown to him. Nemo displayed his unfriendliness by burning his enemies' houses without serving them with due notice to vacate, the indignation boiled there in, and other folks have adopted ways—that have displayed more or less ingenuity and cruelty. But the enemy of Coroner Levy invented a method entirely new and freighted with a degree of wickedness which cannot be raised going down on the most sordid.

This was the starting of a report that the Coroner had committed suicide. It was sprung upon the public yesterday in this form:

Coroner FERDINAND LEVY committed suicide last night. He was disappointed at the failure to secure an appointment as Police Justice and died by asphyxiation.

We are authorized to state that Coroner Levy has not committed suicide, that he does not intend to, and that such a course has never been entertained by him for one moment. As before mentioned, he asserts that this is the fell work of some enemy. The only thing to be done now is to catch the miscreant whose subtle villainy has adopted this method to harm one of New York's best known officeholders. Every effort should be made to hunt the rascal down and put upon him punishment commensurate with his crime.

THE ENGLISH MINERS' STRIKE.

It is difficult to realize the full extent of the great strike, or "holiday," of the coal miners in England, even with the figures and facts presented daily in the newspapers. The statement that half a million men are already idle because of the lay-off and that the ranks of the unemployed will be still further augmented before the time of the miners' vacation is over takes the imagination at the first breath beyond the full comprehension of the reader at a distance. The idea of an army of men so big is itself too big to grasp.

As for the movement, it is the most remarkable of all the present labor agitations in Europe and one of the most singular in all history. It is instituted to prevent a fall in wages which would follow an overproduction of coal. In raising their object in this direction, by restricting the output of the black fuel, the men prevent a reduction of prices to consumers of coal, which, it would seem, would have been grateful to many people in their own station of life. Indeed, it is only stated that the mine owners will eventually profit most by the strike. Yet popular sympathy is declared to be turning towards the miners.

The army of idle men is swelled by the furnace and factory employees, who are thrown out by the failure of coal supplies at the shops. The number of these must increase daily until the "holiday" is over.

There is a strong element of reason in the position taken by the House Naval Committee in recommending that no battle-ship construction be authorized just now. Without armor such ships would be useless. Several of them are waiting for armor now, and there is no prospect that the steel protection required for the twelve ships is proposed to add to the navy can be furnished as home products before 1894. No time will, therefore, be lost by delaying the construction of the new ships.

Prince Ernst of Saxe-Meiningen has dared to become engaged without Imperial consent to a fair maid without a title. And the signs are that the match will be consummated, though the Emperor is opposed.

An entirely new individual and his services were the subject of a notice in the "Herald" last night. He is a young man, a dealer in furniture and carpets at 22-24 East 10th St., who has been in the city for some time, and who is well known to the public. He is a very interesting man, and his services are of great value to the public. He is a very interesting man, and his services are of great value to the public.

WIVES ARE HUMAN.

And, It Is Suggested, Should Be Treated with Consideration.

The Art of Managing Them Under Discussion.

Divers Views of Contributors on an Interesting Subject.

Women seem to be in the majority among the contributors to THE EVENING WORLD's discussion about wife management. The sex is evidently taking advantage of this large opportunity to put in a few good words for itself, and by suggestion and innuendo to make "husband management" of creation methods by which they can strengthen the social fabric and make the marriage state more attractive even than it now is. The contest issue of the most interesting THE EVENING WORLD has conducted. Thousands of letters are coming in, and every one of them makes good, pleasant and instructive reading. There is no reason why, after this discussion is over, every husband in the land shouldn't know how to successfully manage a wife.

In a Kentucky duel forty shots were fired from Winchester and one of the duellists was killed. This differs widely from the Bois de Boulogne brand of article, doesn't it?

THE CLEANER.

I heard the Bishop of Derry lecture last night. He is an old man but vigorous. His remarks were not very impressive.

The centre track on Broadway is being used by bicycle riders. It is perfectly flat and three inches wide, affording a first-class speeding surface.

Get out your shad planks; the Hudson River season begins to-morrow.

John L. Sullivan announces that his coming fight is positively his last appearance in the prize ring. Doesn't this remind you of Pat?

The Authors' Club is cogitating on the necessity of building an uptown club-house. Better calculate the cost, gentlemen.

Dr. Parkhurst's expose yesterday was not very startling.

"Carmen" was acted on a small scale yesterday when a New York cigarette girl attacked a companion and rendered her hors de combat. History will repeat itself.

I grieve to see that the London Engineer takes exception to our Evening Post's mechanical knowledge. In its last edition it says: "The Evening Post of New York, in describing a locomotive for street traction recently, says: 'The engine is of twenty-five-horse power and of double cylinder pattern, so that it can be run either forward or backward.' Doubtless with a third cylinder that engine could be run sideways."

Dr. Gibber seems to be on the road towards getting some one to build him an institute in Chicago, the hydrophobia which doesn't hydrophobe.

A Suspicious Fact.

Mr. Ingalls is again reported to have decided a $10,000 editorship. The frequency with which statesmen out of a job decline these big salaries in journalism is calculated to arouse the suspicion that there are strings attached to these plums.

A Fat Back to Dignity.

It is related that the late Mr. Spurgeon could not preach when his wife was looking at him. How could a man peddle out noble thoughts in the face of a woman who has heard him try to behave with a dull razor and seen him chase hens out of the garden?

Poor Uncle Sam.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.]

If Chief Justice Fuller intends to resign his office to become collector for railroad interests in Chicago, it will be for the large salary offered. Are the railroads better able to pay for legal ability than is the Government of the United States?

Hello! Here's Cannon Again.

[From Rochester Express.]

Joe Cannon says he will be a candidate for Congress this Fall. If he can get the nomination he will be elected, probably, and when he returns to the House he will be likely to guard his tongue with great care. His offense two years ago was a flagrant one, but it has been punished effectively.

Too Late for Campaign Use.

[From the Chicago Times.]

Three thousand tons of tin-plate are on the ocean headed for the United States. As Major McKinley is now comfortably installed as governor of Ohio, however, this incident and others like it pass unnoticed by the Republican press.

WORLDLINGS.

Trausony aims nothing to interfere with the luxury of smoking, of which he is extremely fond. His pipe is rarely away from his lip.

The wife of the German Ambassador at St. Petersburg, the Wurttemberg Minister there and the British Charge d'Affaires there are all American girls.

Mrs. Harrison is reported to have made great progress in her art studies, to which she has devoted much time during all her occupancy of the White House. She has become especially skillful in water-color work.

Every transatlantic trip of the larger of the ocean liners costs from $15,000 to $20,000.

The average mortality of unmarried men between the ages of twenty and twenty-five is 1.174 in every 100,000, while that of married men is only 307.

VACANT VERSES.

Tempora Mutantur.

I played with her more than once, Sweet Heart, but I'm afraid I'm a little bit of a fool. But she called me a dot and a dime. Ah, her lips were my undoing.

But I don't think an angel's kiss and Cupid has ever come to her, and so I don't appear much surprised.

Up and Doing.

The advice to be up and doing is all very well in its way. I am sure that it is. And our deeds bear the light of day. A better present cannot be.

If it's busy with honest labor, then up and doing is a good thing. Then up and doing your neighbor.

The Easter Bonnet.

She used an artificial flower with much of pomp. A piece of straw, a bird's wing, a bit of tinsel.

She showed them a yard of string, a velvet-covered cushion. The whole an Easter bonnet was intended for.

But when it was completed the result was rather plain. For in a strong excitement she had quite lost the frame.

ODD BITS OF CONTEMPORARY HUMOR

The Bald-Headed Man Had Fun With the Fly.

By and by the bald-headed man, who had been asserting that the world was created at least half a million years ago, and that no one could make him believe in the theory of transmigration, leaned back in his seat and settled himself down for a nap, says the Chicago Tribune.

I saw him take out an artificial hairbrush and place it on his nose before closing his eyes, but it was a quarter of an hour before it attracted attention. Then a woman looked back and noticed it, and said to her husband: "What do you see that? You'd better go and brush that fly off that poor man's nose. It's a wonder he can sleep with it; but I suppose he's tired out."

"Yes, I guess I'll do that much for him," replied the man, and he rose up and went back. The fly was very quiet, and he advanced his thumb and finger, and carefully picked it off and dropped it on the floor.

"What—what is it?" asked the bald-headed man as he roused up.

"A fly on your nose, sir."

"A fly, eh? Where is it? Ah! I see."

He picked it up and replaced it on his nose and said: "Sir, I would thank you to mind your own business! This is my fly. I bought him for 10 cents. Attend to your own fly and I will be miffed!"

He leaned back for another nap, and after looking at him in a bewildered way for half a minute, the farmer returned to his wife.

"What is it, Samuel?" she asked.

"Nothing—nothing," he said. "I had that fellow down on his tamarack swamp, I'd mail him till he couldn't breathe for making a fool of me!"

The Sacrifice Too Great.

The momentous question had been pronounced, says the Detroit Tribune. Large, pearly tears clung to her drooping eyelashes and her bosom heaved with emotion, just as tears heaved and bosoms heaved under similar circumstances since the days of the cave-dwellers. He held her hand clasped to his vest.

A glorious courage invested her being. She raised her eyes to his, and said: "Alfred! It was her answer; a single word, eloquent with unutterable trust."

"Alfred!"

"My life!"

"I—I am not afraid of poverty."

He folded her to his bosom, fairly interlarded with joy. "With you I would live in a log cabin," she declared.&lt;/
